Milosevic's Legacy Lingers

GRAVESIDE: An Albanian man in a village south of Kosovo's capital, Pristina, prays Sunday next to the grave of his son and other relatives who were killed by Serbian forces in 1999. Former Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic, reviled by the U.S. as "the butcher of the Balkans," died Saturday in The Hague, where he was on trial for orchestrating a decade of conflict that killed 250,000 people and tore apart the Yugoslav federation. ♦ Cause of death: Autopsy points to heart attack | Page 7

COINCIDENCES | Father Knows Best A man accused of stealing a car in Hopedale, Ohio, was arrested Wednesday after stopping to ask for directions at the house of the car owner's father, authorities said. After Michael Chapman stopped at the house of Thomas Eltringham to ask for directions, Eltringham called his daughter because Chapman's car looked exactly like hers. Her car had just been stolen, so they called police, who caught Chapman driving down the highway. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

Sectarian Violence Resurges

Dozens killed in Baghdad as leaders pledge to create unity

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | The feared resumption of mass sectarian violence erupted Sunday in a Baghdad Shiite slum when bombers blew apart two markets shortly before sundown, killing at least 44 people and wounding about 200.

The bloody assaults on Sadr City came only minutes after Iraqi political leaders said the new parliament will convene Thursday, three days earlier than planned, as the U.S. ambassador pushed to break a stalemate over naming a unity government.

The attackers struck with car bombs, including a suicide driver, and mortars at the peak shopping time, destroying dozens of market stalls and vehicles as the explosives ripped through the poor neighborhood as residents were buying food for their evening meals.

The nature of the attack — its use of a suicide bomber — bore the hallmarks of al Qaeda in Iraq, which has said it hoped to start a Shiite-Sunni civil conflict.

Police said they defused a third car bomb, likely preventing an even higher death toll.

The Sadr City bombers struck shortly after U.S. Ambassador Zalmay Khalilzad and leaders of Iraq's main ethnic and religious blocs concluded a news conference to announce an agreement to move forward the first session of the new parliament to Thursday. The political leaders said they would open marathon meetings on Monday in an attempt to reach agreement on a new government. (AP)

TEST QUESTIONS

True or False: Road Signs Are in Braille

Most high school students eagerly await the day they pass driver's education class. But Mayra Ramirez is indifferent about it. Ramirez is blind, yet she and dozens of other visually impaired sophomores in Chicago schools are required to pass a written rules-of-the-road exam in order to graduate—a rule they say takes time away from subjects they might actually use. "In driver's ed, it does give us the feeling we're different," Ramirez said. "In a way, it brought me down, because it reminds me of something I can't do." Now, a state education official says districts that require drivers ed should exempt disabled students. (AP)

Hopefully They Will Go Directly to Jail

Robbers in Slough, England, snatched a van on the way to the airport and captured more than $129 million - in Monopoly money, the Sun reported. The group thought the vehicle was filled with cash, but, in fact, it had bundles of Monopoly bills — issued by the fictional Bank of Monopoly — and hundreds of copies of the game, all of which were to be used as props in a commercial in which the huge supply of fake bills would rain down on players. Police said the gang heard about the shipment but misunderstood the nature of the money inside the van. (EXPRESS)

Americans have proved extremely consistent in their beliefs about the procedure — and extremely conflicted in their views, new polling shows. A solid majority long have felt that Roe v. # Severe Storms Rip Midwest States

Rough weather follows tornadoes that leave 2 dead in Missouri

LAWRENCE, KAN. | Severe storms swept through parts of Kansas and Missouri Sunday, carrying winds that knocked over airplanes at the downtown Kansas City airport and ripped roofs off homes, businesses, and buildings at the University of Kansas.

The storms followed powerful tornadoes that ripped across southern Missouri and southern Illinois during the night, destroying homes along a path of more than 20 miles and killing a married couple whose car was blown off the road, officials said.

The National Weather Service

SORTING IT OUT: Family members of tornado victims search an area where a twister destroyed several houses and mobile homes near St. Mary, Mo., on Sunday.

had not confirmed whether the storm spawned tornadoes, but several weather spotters reported twisters in the area.

It was not immediately clear how many tornadoes struck the area straddling the Mississippi River from Missouri into Illinois. The twisters were part of a long line of stormy weather that stretched from the southern Plains up the Ohio Valley.

The worst damage was along a rural stretch of Highway 61 near St. Mary in Perry County, Mo., about 80 miles south of St. Louis.

A twister caught a pickup truck on the highway and hurled it beneath a roadside propane tank, killing the husband and wife in the vehicle. The wreckage of the pickup was wedged beneath the tank. JOHN MILBURN (AP)

White House Reacts to Allen Arrest

WASHINGTON | President Bush on Saturday said he was shocked and saddened to learn that former domestic policy adviser Claude Allen was charged with theft for allegedly receiving phony refunds at department stores.

"When I heard the story last night, I was shocked, and my first reaction was one of disappointment, deep disappointment — if it's true — that we were not fully informed," Bush said.

Allen, 45, was arrested Thursday by police in Montgomery County, Md., for allegedly claiming

Biden: Pull Troops Out After Summer

WASHINGTON | The U.S. should pull troops from Iraq after this summer if the political conditions in the country do not improve, the top Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said Sunday.

Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware, who is aiming for the 2008 presidential race, said the Iraqis must have a constitution that unites fighting factions of the society or "it's game over."

"We can't want peace in Iraq more than the Iraqis want it,"

Biden commented on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Biden said if he knew what he knows now when Congress voted on the Iraq war resolution, he would have opposed it. "This has been a debacle," he said. Presidential adviser Karl Rove said Saturday that the Bush administration will not pull American troops out of Iraq until victory is achieved, despite the growing number of Democrats urging a withdrawal. NEDRA PICKLER (AP)

Police to seek murder indictment for suspect in student's strangling

NEW YORK | Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly said Sunday authorities would seek an indictment against a parolee with a long rap sheet, the prime suspect in last month's gruesome slaying of a graduate student.

Blood found on the plastic ties used to bind Imette St. Guillen has been matched to a bouncer at the bar where she was last seen alive, the New York Police Department commissioner said.

Kelly said authorities would take that match and other evidence to a grand jury to get an indictment against Darryl Littlejohn. He didn't give a date for when the grand jury would get the case.

Littlejohn, in custody at a Rikers Island jail on a parole violation, had not been arrested in connection with St. Guillen's death as of Sunday afternoon.

New York City Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly announces Sunday that blood found on a murdered college student matched that of prime suspect Darryl Littlejohn.

The 41-year-old maintains his innocence.

Littlejohn was a bouncer at The Falls bar, where manager has told police he ordered him to escort the woman out when she stayed sipping a drink past the 4 a.m. closing time; he recalled hearing the pair arguing before they disappeared through a side door.

Sometime during the next 17 hours, the student at John Jay College of Criminal Justice in Manhattan was raped, strangled and suffocated. Her naked and bound body was found in a remote section of Brooklyn on Feb. 25 with a sock stuffed in her mouth and her head wrapped with packaging tape.

Feingold Seeks Bush Censure for Wiretaps

Senator says president's authorization for spy program was illegal

WASHINGTON | A liberal Democrat and potential White House contender is proposing censuring President Bush for authorizing domestic eavesdropping, saying the White House misled Americans about its legality.

"The president has broken the law and, in some way, he must be held accountable," Sen. Russ Feingold, D-Wis., said.

A censure resolution, which simply would scold the president, has been used just once in U.S. history — against Andrew Jackson in 1834.

The five-page resolution to be introduced on Monday contends that Bush violated the law when, on his own, he set up the eavesdropping program within the National Security Agency in the months following the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001.

Bush claims that his authority as commander in chief as well as congressional authorizations authorized in 2001 gave him the power to authorize the surveillance.

Military Shuns Many Potential Troop Recruits

WASHINGTON | With U.S. casualties rising in wars overseas and more opportunities in the civilian work force from an improved U.S. economy, many young people are shunning a career in the armed forces. But recruiting is still a two-way street — and the military, too, doesn't want most people in this prime recruiting age group of 17 to 24.

Of some 32 million Americans now in this group, the Army deems the vast majority too obese, too uneducated, too flawed in some way, according to its estimates for the current budget year.

Some experts are skeptical. "Recruiters are looking for reasons other than themselves," said David R. Segal, director of the Center for Research on Military Organization at the University of Maryland. "So they blame the pool." (AP)

Dog Handler Charged In Abu Ghraib Abuses

Army sergeant accused of detainee assault at infamous Iraq prison

HAGERSTOWN, MD. | The court-martial of an Army dog handler charged with abusing detainees at the Abu Ghraib prison in Iraq could help clarify who approved the harsh treatment that human-rights advocates say amounted to torture.

Sgt. Michael J. Smith, 24, is accused of using his unmuzzled dog to harass, threaten and assault detainees in late 2003 and early 2004 — the same period in which guards at the prison subjected inmates to sexual humiliation and other abuses documented in widely seen photographs.

Military justice experts and

civil-rights activists expect Smith's attorneys to argue that his actions, documented in some of those Abu Ghraib photos, were condoned by superiors in a chain of command stretching to the Pentagon.

Heart Attack Said to Fell Milosevic

U.N. tribunal reveals more tests are needed to rule out poisoning

THE HAGUE, NETHERLANDS | A heart attack killed Slobodan Milosevic in his jail cell, the U.N. war crimes tribunal said, citing preliminary findings from Dutch pathologists who conducted a nearly eight-hour autopsy Sunday on the former Yugoslav leader.

The tribunal said pathologists had determined that "Milosevic's cause of death was a 'myocardial infarction' — a medical term for heart attack.

Found dead in his cell Saturday morning, the 64-year-old Milosevic had suffered from heart ailments and high blood pressure, and his bad health caused numerous breaks in his four-year, $200 million trial before the tribunal.

Some wondered if suicide might have been an out for the man accused of causing wars that killed 250,000 people during the breakup of Yugoslavia in the 1990s. And a legal adviser said Milosevic feared he was being poisoned.

A tribunal spokeswoman said it was too early to determine if poison could have caused the heart attack, saying a final autopsy report would be released in coming days.

Milosevic's body was to be delivered to his family by Monday, according to the tribunal. But there was disagreement among relatives about whether he should be buried in his homeland of Serbia or in Russia, where his wife and son live in exile.

In Serbia, Milosevic loyalists burned candles in memory of their fallen hero at branches of his Socialist Party. Elderly women sobbed and kissed photos of him, adorned with black cloth.

While some Serbs spent Sunday mourning Milosevic, others marked the third anniversary of the slaying of a key Milosevic foe: the charismatic Zoran Djindjic, who headed the pro-democracy movement that toppled Milosevic and engineered his handover to the U.N. court for trial. ANTHONY DEUTSCH (AP)

Three co-defendants testify; ex-leader could take stand on Monday

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Saddam Hussein's trial entered a new phase Sunday as three of his co-defendants testified for the first time, denying they had any role in the killings and arrests of Shiite Muslims in the 1980s.

All eight defendants are to be brought before the court, one by one, for direct questioning. The ousted leader was expected to go last, possibly Monday, though it was up to chief judge Raouf Abdel-Rahman to decide when to call him.

Saddam and seven former members of his regime are on trial for the deaths of 148 Shiites in the crackdown, as well as the illegal imprisonment and torture of Dujail residents. They face possible execution by hanging if convicted.

On Sunday, three men who were local Dujail officials in Saddam's ruling Baath party stood before the chief judge and testified. Saddam and the other defendants did not appear during the four-hour session. BASSEM MROUE (AP)

Afghan Suicide Attack Kills 4 GIs

Separate bombing in Kabul targets political leader, but he escapes

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | A roadside bomb killed four U.S. troops passing by in an armored vehicle in eastern Afghanistan on Sunday, the deadliest attack on coalition forces in a month.

In Kabul, a suicide bombing Sunday killed two people and narrowly missed the chief of Afghanistan's upper house of parliament, and he accused Pakistani intelligence of trying to assassinate him.

The two bombings were the latest in a series of militant attacks that appear to be gathering intensity four years after the ouster of the hard-line Taliban regime by a U.S.-led invasion.

The four American troops died when their vehicle was hit by an improvised explosive device in the Pech Valley in Kunar province as they patrolled to keep a road open to civilian and military traffic, military spokesman Col. Jim Yonts said.

Also Sunday, a car bombing in the capital targeted Sibghatullah Mujaddedi, a Muslim cleric who briefly served as president in 1992. He now heads the new Meshrano Afghan police guard the site of a suicide car bombing in Kabul on Sunday.

Jirga, or upper house of parliament, and leads a commission encouraging Taliban fighters to reconcile with the government.

Mujaddedi escaped with burns but two bystanders, a girl on her way to school and a man on a motorbike, were killed.

Mujaddedi directly accused Pakistan's Inter-Services Intelligence agency for the bombing. He offered no proof.

"We have got information that ISI of Pakistan has launched a plan to kill me," he said. RAHIM FAIEZ (AP)

Berlusconi Storms Out of Interview

ROME | Premier Silvio Berlusconi stormed off the set of a state TV show Sunday, branding the journalist interviewing him as a leftist, two days before a planned debate between the conservative leader and election challenger Romano Prodi.

"I'm getting up and leaving if you don't let me answer. Is that clear?" the premier and media magnate said curtly when the program's host, Lucia Annunziata, insisted he answer her questions.

Annunziata, a longtime Berlusconi foe, resigned in 2004 as the head of state broadcaster RAI, alleging that forces loyal to Berlusconi's government were trying to control the broadcaster. Berlusconi's three Mediaset networks are the main private TV rivals to RAI's three channels.

Annunziata now conducts a 30-minute news-maker interview program on RAI called "In a half-hour."

When Berlusconi warned that he would leave if Annunziata demanded answers, she said: "I ask you not to go," and told the premier, "you can't dictate the rules." (AP)

Iranian Foreign Minister Manouchehr Mottaki talks to the media Sunday amid news of Tehran's decision to reject a Russian proposal on uranium enrichment.

Iran Rules Out Russia Nuke Plan

Tehran says proposal off its 'agenda' as U.N. council preps to meet

TEHRAN, IRAN | Iran on Sunday ruled out a proposal to conduct uranium enrichment on Russian territory, drawing a harsh rebuke from a lawmaker in Moscow who said the move destroyed the only chance for a compromise in the standoff over Tehran's suspect nuclear program.

The announcement came as the permanent members of the U.N. Security Council were to meet this week to discuss a draft statement aimed at increasing the pressure on Iran to resolve questions about its nuclear activities amid fears they are aimed at developing atomic weapons.

Moscow has sought to persuade Iran to move its enrichment program to Russian territory, which would allow closer international monitoring.

"The Russian proposal is not on our agenda anymore," Foreign Ministry spokesman Hamid Reza Asefi said.

In Moscow, Konstantin Kosachev, the head of international affairs committee of the lower house of parliament, said Iran's decision meant the end of chances for a compromise on the issue, according to Russian news reports.

Kosachev also warned Tehran that its refusal to continue talks on the Russian offer could "radicalize" the Security Council's debate, Russian news agencies said.

Iranian Foreign Minister Manouchehr Mottaki, meanwhile, said Tehran had no intention to use oil as a weapon in its confrontation with the West over its nuclear program, contradicting a statement a day earlier by Interior Minister Mostafa Pourmohammadi. (AP)

Villepin Stands Firm on New Jobs Law

PARIS | Prime Minister Dominique de Villepin vowed to press on with a new labor law that has fanned broad protests, pleading with the French to accept reforms to a brittle job market saddled with high unemployment rates among the young.

Villepin, speaking in a prime-time interview Sunday, vowed to work with labor leaders to defuse tensions that swelled a day earlier when riot police stormed a Paris university to remove students holed up inside to protest the new law.

The law, which begins in April, will make it easier for employers to hire and fire young workers in the first two years of employment. (AP)

Teen Charged In Triple Shooting

WASHINGTON | A teenager was charged Sunday in a triple shooting that left one person dead.

Melvin A. Reid, 18, turned himself and was charged with second-degree murder while armed early Sunday morning, police said.

The shooting happened Saturday afternoon at 36th Place and Ames Place in Northeast Washington. Antonio Weaver, 20, was sitting in a car with another person when at least one person approached and fired shots. Weaver died Saturday after being taken to a local hospital. The other person in the car was shot in the abdomen and a bystander was shot in the hip. Their injuries were not fatal.

A motive for the shooting has not been determined. (AP)

Water Main Break Drains Arlington

Main line that feeds Va. county ruptures, closing roads, bridge

WASHINGTON | A major water main ruptured under Chain Bridge on Sunday, cutting off water to thousands of Arlington County customers along with some in the District and closing roads across the area.

Late Sunday afternoon, officials said most customers would get water back Sunday night, albeit with low pressure. They suggested that residents who lost water completely drink bottled water until further notice from government as a precautionary measure in the event of contamination.

As of 7 p.m. customers were indeed reporting a return of water service in the form of a trickle.

The break occurred about 2:30 p.m., officials said, in a 36-inch main that runs from a water treatment plant in the District to Chain Bridge and then across the

According to a Washington Aqueduct employee at the scene, 250,000 to 500,000 gallons cascaded out during a two-hour period before crews got the gushing pipe under control.

"The whole ... valve blew," said Kerry Payne, from the D.C. Office of Emergency Management. "There was water everywhere."

Fern Stone, a spokesman for nearby Sibley Memorial Hospital, said that water pressure there went down for about an hour but was back to normal by late afternoon.

Marine Corps giving away houses to those who can haul them off

QUANTICO, VA. | The Quantico Marine Corps base is offering free steel-paneled homes to anyone who can disassemble them and haul them away.

The 58 prefabricated Lustron homes were part of a short-lived attempt in the late 1940s to solve the post-World War II housing shortage. Quantico's collection is thought to be among the world's largest.

"They are something people want to see an effort to preserve," said Bereket Selassie of Clark Realty Capital, which is handling the giveaway.

Two Lustron homes will be kept on base and preserved.

"Housing is a huge retention issue for the military," Selassie said. (AP)

PGA Tees Off Restaurant

Golf-themed dining spot in Rockville is first of its kind in U.S.

ROCKVILLE, MD. | You need not know the difference between a birdie and a bogey to get a table at the new PGA Tour Grill.

The low-key, modern design of the restaurant is a far cry from the more heavily-themed Planet Hollywood or Hard Rock Cafe. There are wide-screen TVs in the bar, mostly set on The Golf Channel. Lighting design just inside the door is meant to suggest the flight of a golf ball.

It is the first of what backers hope will eventually be several dozen such restaurants. The prototype, aimed at middle- to upper-income customers, recently opened quietly under a licensing pact between the Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla.-based tour and a Rockville venture, Tour Dining Concepts.

The idea behind the soft-sell is to provide a backdrop that customers don't quickly tire of, said Leo McCullagh, vice president of retail licensing for the PGA Tour. "This is not faddish, it is not intended to be something like a sports bar. It is not a place where you could go and there's paraphernalia hanging from the ceilings, or oversized race cars or anything like that," he said.

Inside the new PGA Tour Grill in Rockville, TV sets are tuned to the Golf Channel. Industry experts say the restaurant's subtle approach may win customers' favor.

Industry expert Ron Paul says the more subtle approach should help the concept endure.

"It is good to get the brand out there because it is a way to get trial and differentiate yourself from the competition," said Paul, president of Teknomic, a Chicago-based food and restaurant consulting firm. "As long as they keep it subtle, keep it classy, because I think that is what the PGA wants to be known for,"

he said.

Other attempts at themed restaurants have failed because they have appealed primarily to tourists, who may or may not want to return, he said.

"If you really want to get beyond just tourist locations, where you aren't dependent on regular customers, then you have to go back to the basics ... very definitely play down the gimmicks, play down the museum aspects of what you are doing," he said. MARK HAMRICK (AP)

Alienware Invasion

Gamers are paying the big bucks for these tricked-out PCs

MIAMI | Just a few months after cleaning out his bank account and quitting his job to help start up a childhood friend's new computer company, Alex Aguila sat alone in the fledgling firm's office and began to have some second thoughts.

Banks had laughed at their concept of selling expensive PCs for video gamers at a time when other computer companies were cutting prices to grab more customers. The fact that the new company, Alienware, took its name from UFO lore didn't help either.

Aguila and his friend, Nelson Gonzalez, had just $10,000 between them.

"I was there and all the walls were black ... and the phones were sitting there and not ringing. And I'm thinking, 'What did I do?'" said Aguila.

But 10 years later, Miami-based Alienware Corp. is widely acclaimed by video gamers and on track to hit $225 million in sales this year, up from $172 million in 2005. The success of the privately held company has lured others, including industry leader Dell Inc., to target the high-end market, too.

Companies such as Alienware, VoodooPC and Falcon Northwest have been pioneers in capturing customers willing to spend $7,000 or more for a computer, said Richard Shim, an analyst at the research firm IDC. Performance in high-demand games and applications is worth any price for many of those people, who are mainly men with a lot of disposable income.

Gonzalez, 40, envisioned a big market for these PCs in 1996 when he came up with the idea for Alienware, so named because of his interest in UFOs, science fiction and the TV show "X Files." He and Aguila, 38, grew up playing video games, and they always had to upgrade motherboards, microprocessors and graphics cards in their PCs to handle the latest programs.

They got a favorable review of their first machine by a magazine now known as Maximum PC. The next review was even more flattering: the magazine PC Gamer liked Alienware's work so much that an editor didn't want to send the computer back, Gonzalez said.

Alienware's least expensive laptops and desktops today start at around $700, but the top-of-the-line, liquid-cooled ALX models can approach $10,000 when fully tricked out with dual-core processors, hard drives that can store up to a terabyte of data, and state-of-the-art graphics cards.

Alienware's success has drawn the attention of the computer market's big players. Dell revamped its XPS line in 2001 to feature high-powered, high-priced computers to better compete with companies like Alienware and Voodoo.

Hard Drives to Go Via Google?

SAN FRANCISCO | Google Inc. apparently hopes to persuade computer users to entrust all their digital data with the online search engine leader, even though the company is having trouble controlling its own internal communications.

Plans for a Google service offering "infinite" storage capacity leaked out last week when the company inadvertently shared some information about several projects, including one named "GDrive," on its Web site.

Google quickly removed the previously confidential notes, but not before some eagle-eyed Web surfers had already made copies.

In its internal notes, Google discusses an ambitious storage system that would keep its users' word processing files, e-mails, Web history and photos on the company's own computers. Google believes the service would be enticing because the information would be unleashed from a single PC in a home or office, allowing users to access their data from any Web-linked computer.

"The online copy of your data will become your Golden Copy," Google's notes said, while the original information kept on a users' PC would serve as a backup.

Google spokeswoman Lynn Fox declined to discuss the possible storage system.

In its leaked notes, Google acknowledged it would have to overcome current limitations on transmission speeds and storage capacity. Google also would have overcome privacy concerns and possible trust issues. (AP)

Mourning Sparks Heat to Comeback Win Over Cavs

Alonzo Mourning sparked a fourth-quarter surge while Shaquille O'Neal watched from the bench, and the Miami Heat earned their latest come-from-behind victory Sunday by beating the Cleveland Cavaliers 98-92. LeBron James scored 47 points for Cleveland and Dwyane Wade had 35 for the Heat, but it was Mourning who took charge during the decisive stretch. The Heat back-up center finished with 16 points and eight rebounds. (AP)

The Baltimore Ravens retained one of their own free agents Sunday as linebacker Bart Scott turned down a larger, longer-term offer from the Cleveland Browns to re-sign with the Ravens, his agent said. # Randle El Catches On With Redskins

Signing completes the team's overhaul of its wide receiver corps

REDSKINS | The Washington Redskins agreed to terms with Antwaan Randle El on Sunday, according to a source with knowledge of the situation, completing an overhaul of their receiver corps. Randle El, 26, will join Brandon Lloyd, 24, who was acquired from San Francisco on Friday, and Santana Moss as the Redskins attempt to improve their passing game in 2006.

The terms agreed upon are worth a maximum of $31 million over seven years with up to $11.5 million guaranteed in roster and signing bonuses, the source said.

Randle El was one of the premier free agents on the market, and is one of five players completing visits to Washington Sunday, along with defensive end Andre Carter, safety Adam Archuleta, quarterback Todd Collins and tight end Christian Fauria.

The Redskins, according to a league source, are close to signing Fauria, an 11-year veteran who spent the last four seasons with New England. After being signed as an undrafted free agent in 1997, Fauria spent his first seven seasons in Seattle. He played on two Super Bowl teams with the Patriots, and became expendable as the Patriots are developing two young tight ends, Daniel Graham and Benjamin Watson.

Washington's offense became stagnant in the postseason, with Moss the clear focal point of the downfield game, but now starting quarterback Mark Brunell will have an array of options. Randle El, a former college quarterback, also is an elite return specialist and has told the team he would like to continue in that role. JASON LA CANFORA AND HOWARD BRYANT (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Red-Hot Senators Drop Caps, 5-2

CAPITALS | Dany Heatley and Jason Spezza each had a goal and two assists to help the Ottawa Senators beat the Washington Capitals 5-2 on Sunday.

Ottawa, 7-0-1 in its last eight games with Washington, finished a five-game trip with a 4-1 record after also beating Toronto, Atlanta and Tampa Bay.

Wade Redden, Patrick Eaves and Chris Neil also scored for Ottawa, and Ray Emery made 25 saves as the Senators improved to 38-0 when scoring at least four goals.

Chris Clark and Jamie Heward scored for Washington.

Eaves gave Ottawa a 1-0 lead, beating goalie Olaf Kolzig off a rebound 4:54 into the game.

Washington appeared to have scored the first goal 1:25 seconds earlier when Alex Ovechkin batted a puck out of the air into the goal. But officials ruled Ovechkin's stick was above the crossbar and disallowed the play. Ovechkin went scoreless for the second straight game.

Redden added a power-play goal with 5:55 left in the period for a 2-0 lead, breaking Ottawa's 0-for-17 extra-man drought in road games. Clark cut the lead to one later in the period, but the Senators made it 3-1 when Spezza scored on a breakaway 7:57 into the second period. (AP)

Cardinals Gain 'Edge' For Runner

Former Indianapolis star inks 4-year, $30M contract with Arizona

NFL | Edgerrin James ran off to the Arizona Cardinals on Sunday, agreeing to a four-year, $30 million contract with one of the NFL's weakest teams.

James, who became a free agent after seven seasons with the Colts, knew there was little chance he would return to Indianapolis when the season ended in a loss to Pittsburgh in the AFC divisional round.

James is gone after setting team records for rushing attempts (2,188), yards (9,226) and touchdowns (64).

"It's a great situation. All they really need is a back," James said at a news conference.

Then he added, "OK, it's a risk. But hey, I'm a poker player. You can take it to the river. I'm not scared to make a change."

"I'm happy for him," Colts coach Tony Dungy told The Associated Press. "He was fantastic for us the time we were here, we wish we could have kept him but you can't keep everyone." BOB BAUM (AP)

Nats Continue to Struggle

Washington's offense is weak yet again in a 5-2 loss to the Marlins

NATIONALS | Here's the thing about spring training: Records don't matter once opening day arrives. So the Florida Marlins probably are not going to get too fired up about their winning ways in the Grapefruit League, and the Washington Nationals aren't quite ready to hit the panic button.

Still, shortstop Hanley Ramirez and right-hander Josh Johnson gave Marlins manager Joe Girardi reason to be optimistic Sunday, while Nationals manager Frank Robinson is seeing plenty to give him pause, including a lack of offense and hiccups on defense.

Ramirez homered twice, Johnson gave up one hit over four shutout innings, and Florida took advantage of three more errors by Washington to beat the Nationals 5-2 at spring training.

"You just don't like to see sloppy play. We're not playing good, crisp, sharp baseball in any aspect of the game right now. Period. It's going to have to pick up," said Robinson, whose team has won one of its last nine exhibition games to drop to 2-10-1.

"It's focus, anticipation and concentration. That's what it is.

The Nationals' Ryan Zimmerman is tagged by Florida Marlins catcher Ryan Jorgensen after striking out to end the top half of the sixth inning on Sunday.

NATS NOTES

→ As good as John Patterson has looked this spring, Livan Hernandez will be Washington's opening day starter — as long as he's ready to go. Hernandez make his second exhibition start Tuesday against Florida.

→ Frank Robinson isn't thrilled about Tony Armas Jr. (Venezuela) and Luis Ayala (Mexico) playing in the World Baseball Classic. "We would like to have seen them get a little more use out there, especially Armas," he said.

We don't seem to really be there right now."

The Nationals had the majors' worst offense last season, and they're hitting .253 this spring.

Ortiz, meanwhile, had another rough outing, allowing three runs on six hits and three walks over three innings — and yet his ERA somehow went down, from 14.40 to 12.38.

"It's never too early to be concerned," Robinson said. "But I'm not ready to go jump off a building or anything." HOWARD FENDRICH (AP)

U.S. Ekes Out Victory Over Japan

BASEBALL | Alex Rodriguez came through with the winning hit for the United States after Japan appeared to get the short end of a controversial call.

Rodriguez hit a bases-loaded, two-out single in the ninth Sunday to give Team USA a 4-3 victory in the opener of Round 2 in the inaugural World Baseball Classic.

Vernon Wells opened the ninth with his third hit, and Randy Winn sacrificed, but reached first when second baseman Tsuyoshi Nishioka drew an error for coming off the base while catching third baseman Akinori Iwamura's throw.

Losers Kyuji Fukukawa threw out

Alex Rodriguez reacts after striking out Sunday, but he later got the winning hit.

Wells at third on Michael Young's attempted sacrifice, and Derek Jeter was hit by a pitch to load the bases. Ken Griffey struck out before Rodriguez appeared to be jammed on a 1-1 pitch, but his grounder got past Fujikawa and Nishioka's attempt behind second was unsuccessful.

Japan appeared to take a 4-3 lead off Joe Nathan in the eighth when Iwamura flied to left with one out and the bases loaded. Nishioka beat Winn's throw home, but umpire Neil Poulton ruled Nishioka left the base before the catch was made. It didn't seem that way on the television replay, and manager Sadaharu Oh argued to no avail. JOHN NADEL (AP)

Gamecocks Fall Short Vs. Gators

SEC CHAMPIONSHIP | Joakim Noah scored with 11 seconds left then blocked a shot at the other end, and No. 16 Florida held off South Carolina 49-47 Sunday for a second straight Southeastern Conference tournament championship in a sloppy game in which the Gamecocks nearly pulled off the improbable upset.

Florida (27-6) already had its 13th NCAA tournament berth assured. The Gators talked of wanting revenge against a team that swept them in the regular season, and they led the entire way but never put away South Carolina.

The Gamecocks (18-15) already were the lowest seed ever to play in this championship and had played in this game only once before — in 1998. With winning the title their only chance of reaching the NCAA tournament, they were trying to become the first team since Arkansas in 2000 to win four games in four days. They almost pulled it off.

South Carolina guard Rocky Trice tied the game at 47 with 42 seconds left when he drove through the lane and scored on a layup. Corey Brewer of Florida missed a short jumper, but Noah followed up with the winning basket. (AP)

Duke Edges Boston College for Title

Redick, Blue Devils capture school's 16th ACC championship

ACC CHAMPIONSHIP | Duke found the perfect remedy for that two-game losing streak at the end of the regular season — a short trip to the Greensboro Coliseum for the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament, an almost unbeatable combination.

J.J. Redick had consecutive 3-pointers down the stretch to give Duke the lead for good, Sheldon Williams and Greg Paulus added clutch free throws in the final seconds and the Blue Devils held off No. 11 Boston College 78-76 Sunday in the championship game.

bounced off the backboard, denying the Eagles the title in their inaugural ACC tournament.

Of course, this is familiar territory for the Blue Devils (30-3), who won the tournament for a record 16th time. Seven have come in the past eight years, an amazing run of superiority for Hall of Fame coach Mike Krzyzewski and his program.

Since 1998, the Blue Devils are 25-2 in this event. They are 30-15 in the ACC tournament in this arena.

This one was far from easy, and not simply because Duke lost the final two games of the regular season. BC (26-7) knocked off North Carolina in the semifinals and rallied from a 10-point deficit in the second half against the Blue Devils.

Jayhawks Rock Texas in Big 12

BIG 12 CHAMPIONSHIP | The Kansas Jayhawks considered their only loss over the last two months a bit of a fluke because they did so many things wrong. Given another chance against the Texas Longhorns, the Jayhawks showed why they think they're the best team in the Big 12.

Handling with ease the big-game pressure that rattled them in Austin two weeks ago, No. 17 Kansas was terrific outside and played great defense to beat the eighth-ranked Longhorns 80-68 Sunday in the finals of the conference tournament.

UConn., Villanova and Memphis round out the No. 1 seedings

NCAA TOURNAMENT | Duke was selected as a No. 1 seed in the NCAA tournament for a record-tying 10th time Sunday, while Connecticut and Villanova led the Big East's unprecedented eight teams in the field with top seeds of their own.

Memphis was the final No. 1 chosen among tournament's 65 teams.

Duke's 10th No. 1 selection matched North Carolina for the most ever. It is Connecticut's fourth top seeding and the first time for both Villanova and Memphis.

Eight Big East teams broke the conference's own previous record of seven, which it had shared with the Big Ten. The Big East did it in 1991; the Big Ten in 1990, 1994, 1999 and 2001.

This year's bracket features six teams each from the Big Ten and Southeastern Conference. The Atlantic Coast, Big 12, Missouri Valley and Pac-10 each had four teams chosen.

U-MD Is Left In The Cold

The Wolverines didn't see or hear what they wanted when the NCAA tournament announced its field of 65 teams Sunday night.

Joining Michigan (18-10) as at-large hopefuls that didn't make the cut were: Cincinnati (19-12), Florida State (19-9), Maryland (19-12), Hofstra (24-6), Missouri State (20-8) and Creighton (19-9).

The Wolverines started the season with legitimate hopes of reaching the NCAA tournament for the first time since 1998. They had a great chance to reach their goal with a 16-3 record until collapsing with seven losses in their last nine games, including their last three.

"We didn't do what we should have," Michigan guard Daniel Horton said after watching the selection show with his teammates and coaches. "We put our future in the hands of someone else."

While Michigan had only itself to blame, some of the other teams that just missed a bid likely were angry to see some of the schools invited.

Maryland won't be part of March Madness for the second straight year.

Air Force (24-6) and Bradley, both 13th seeds, led the group of last-in teams along 12 seeds Utah State (23-8) and Texas A&M (21-8), and 11th-seeded George Mason (23-7).

As it turned out, the Wolverines hurt their cause with a lackluster nonconference schedule. They played only one ranked team, losing to UCLA, and their top nonconference victory was over Miami in the Big Ten-ACC Challenge.

"If there's a message, the larger schools, the larger conferences, really do have a choice on who they play in nonconference," said selection committee chairman Craig Littlepage, the athletic director at Virginia. LARRY LAGE (AP)

BLOOD AND ROSES: Maybe Sarah Jessica Parker can carry a movie. Her romantic comedy, "Failure to Launch," rocketed into the No. 1 spot over the weekend. Disney's "The Shaggy Dog" and the slasher flick "The Hills Have Eyes" went to 2 and 3, respectively.

Getting His Thrills

Director Wes Craven is now horror-mentor to a new generation

MUTANT CANNIBALS REDUX | Wes Craven's 1977 horror classic "The Hills Have Eyes" has returned to theaters in a remake directed by Alexandre Aja ("High Tension"). According to Craven, "Hills" needed to be reborn for a new generation. He spoke with us about the remake of his mutant-zombies film, contemporary horror and comedy.

You were so happy with "The Hills Have Eyes" that you wanted it remade?

Yes. I liked that film a lot. It was very original. It was a feeling that it would be fun to remake it. It was also a chance to work with a really talented filmmaker and see what he would do.

Did you have a problem with someone else directing it?

No. There were moments where I was thinking, "It would be better this way." It was more of the insight to get out of his way, once you make that decision.

We listened to ideas for remakes for years and rejected them. It was a matter of our agency calling us and mentioning Alex Aja. We liked his idea and his energy.

What do you think of today's hor-

AX OF HOMAGE: Alexandre Aja was inspired by the original "The Hills Have Eyes."

ror movies?

The ones right now seem to have a lot of overt torture in them, which isn't my cup of tea, but I have to acknowledge that our government is probably torturing a lot of people.

It is germane.

Did you help Alex cut scenes to get "Hills" an R rating?

I showed him the six or seven things that would give it an R. It was excruciating for him and I knew exactly how he was feeling. It is hard to do something that is incredibly intense and then take the intensity back. It's not why you become a director — to make the movie according to people you never meet.

Last year's "Red Eye," which you directed, did well. Do you think you'll stick with thrillers or go back to directing horror films?

I feel a lot more open. For whatever reason, I was just sent a comedy. I'll do anything that I think is fun.

When you get a straight-out comedy, do you wonder why they sent it to you?

Not even a second. I think humor and horror are like that (crosses his fingers). They're about timing, they're about building tension and releasing it, they're about our deepest fears. Comedy is about things we are scared of — like mother-in-laws — all the stuff that we are profoundly uneasy with. And somehow they release that tension.

Nobody has died of fear from seeing a movie.

[Laughs] I keep trying. PETERSON GONZAGA (VNU ENTERTAINMENT NEWS WIRE)

D.C. jazz mainstay Davey Yarborough tickles the ivories, looks heaven-ward.

Davey Yarborough: Those that Can, Teach

The sweet sounds of Davey Yarborough's sax are familiar to jazz hounds and a nation of "Cosby Show" viewers alike. The much-feted Yarborough (he's also a popular teacher at D.C.'s Duke Ellington School) gets the band together tonight for a free show.

Kennedy Center, 2700 F St. NW; 6 p.m., free; 202-467-4600. (Foggy Bottom-GWU)

Tony Kushner: Life of a Writer

Tony Kushner, the playwright who won a Pulitzer for "Angels in America," visits Politics & Prose tonight to talk about Arthur Miller, the ladies' man/playwright who married Marilyn Monroe and wrote "The Crucible," "After the Fall," and "Death of a Salesman."

Politics & Prose, 5015 Connecticut Ave. NW; 8:15 p.m., $13; 202-364-1919. (Van Ness)

Local metal/grindcore outfit Left Unsaid looks boring, sounds ferocious and has a killer drummer.

Warehouse Next Door, 1017 7th St. NW; 8:30 p.m., $7, with Hippy Murder Machine, Blue Collar War, Rumpelstiltskin Grinder; 202-783-3933. (Mt. Vernon Square)

Deadboy Comes Alive

Step over to the dark side with a grungy but energetic duo

MUSIC | Dax Riggs of Deadboy & the Elephantmen is a chronicler of the dark side of life. Since his first musical outbursts with cult-metal band Acid Bath, and later with his one-off rock group Agents of Oblivion, Riggs has found a way to turn the darkness of the world into gripping, vivid songs full of haunting and sometimes disturbing imagery.

It's a gift that hasn't abated on "We Are Night Sky" (Fat Possum), his latest project, though his presentation has changed. Riggs has stripped down his sound for Deadboy & the Elephantmen, which is basically Riggs on guitar and vocals and Tessie Brunet on drums. Together, they play a grungy and grimy mix of downbeat acoustic numbers and garage-rock rave-ups that retain a certain dark energy.

Opener "Stop, I'm Already Dead" rocks steady and true; "Dressed in Smoke" and "Walking Stick" are updated blues dirges. "How Long the Night Was" and "Ancient Man" inject a little dark glam with their riffs and Riggs' Bowie-like croon. These are truly nocturnal songs. But you won't mind getting lost in this night sky. THOMAS PIZZOLA (THE HARTFORD COURANT)

Entertainment

HEAR HIM ROAR: Good news, fans of Aslan: The first "Chronicles of Narnia" filmic installment made enough money to convince Disney to commit to a second. "Prince Caspian" should hit theaters in late 2007. Did you think it was about the art? You poor thing.

THRIFT STORE: Australia's Wolfmother, led by hippie-haired vocalist Andrew Stockdale, left, refashions vintage '70s rock into something that fits today.

Season of The Wolf

From Down Under, a band that can make you do stupid things

FANGS A LOT | The caveman drumming, the beefy-thick riffs and bass lines, Andrew Stockdale's no-holds-barred vocals — Wolfmother makes the sort of music that inspires trouble. It's impossible to listen without wanting to test the limits of your stereo system and self-propriety. One spin of their domestic debut EP, "Dimensions," and you'll be feeling the flutter of an impulse to make out with strangers. Two, and you'll want to take off your clothes. In public.

Sexy, liberating, exciting, raw — the EP is just a tease of what's to come. Their debut full-length disc, to be released here in May, is even better. It builds on the throbbing classic rock and anthemic psychedelia to create a sort of tribute to the '60s and '70s that doesn't sound retro so much as vintage.

"Things were better in the '70s," Stockdale said. "Cars looked better. Interior design looked better. A lot of artwork was more progressive.... We're in a time of technical efficiency and modern living, but things aren't aesthetically improving."

The band members first got together in 1999. Drummer Myles Heskett and keyboardist/bass player Chris Ross were living in an apartment above a video store in Sydney, Australia, when Stockdale met Ross at a party and the two decided to jam.

For 4 ½ years, the trio played as a sort of collective for anyone who wanted to hang out. Their sound was more indie than hard rock. It was only after seeing a show by the post-rock Washington, D.C., trio Trans Am that their sound really gelled. "It was a modern, minimalistic take on grooves, so we were trying to push for that," said Stockdale.

Now riffs are what the group's all about. "When you're in the audience, you don't want to see someone be polite and play guitar," Stockdale said. "You want to see them living every bit of the music. You want to see that chaos. You want to feel like you've done bad things."

SUSAN CARPENTER (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

In With 'Old Christine'

On her new sitcom, Julia Louis-Dreyfus shows potential

DEBUT | In CBS' comedy "The New Adventures of Old Christine," the ex-husband prefers the "new Christine" — a younger girlfriend — to the "old Christine," his ex-wife, played by Julie Louis-Dreyfus. Viewers, on the other hand, may prefer the old Louis-Dreyfus to the new one.

"Old Christine" recasts the actress as a middle-aged mommy abomination prone to whining. The neurotic lies of Louis-Dreyfus' most famous character, Elaine Benes from "Seinfeld," are still there, but they aren't cute anymore.

But there's hope. Later epi-

CBS' "Old Christine" is fine when it isn't contemptuous of her character.

sodes hit the adorable-nutjob tone a little louder, bringing back enjoyable echoes of the past. Watching Louis-Dreyfus suck at dancing never seems to get old; neither is the comedy of seeing her stuck in hands-over-your-eyes uncomfortable situations. She's much more fun, and funny, when not playing a doting mom.

Same with the show — there are laughs when it eschews drama-of-life gab. When characters have long, tedious conversations about their problems, it's painful.

The other cast members are a mixed bag. The likeable Clark Gregg seems to be wasting his talent in Christine's ex-hubby, but Hamish Linklater steals every scene with his perfect deadpan. There is hope for this show — provided the "Old Christine" more closely resemble what new adventures we'd expect of the old Julia Louis-Dreyfus.

Television

CARPET-BAGGER: Evangeline Lilly of “Lost” obviously doesn’t know her worth. Despite co-starring on one of the hottest — and toniest — shows in prime-time, the brunette has signed up to shill Karastan rugs in a series of print ads.

The Splinter Sell

The cast members of ‘Raymond’ go their separate ways on TV

MOVING ON | Two stars and the creator of “Everybody Loves Raymond” may be coming back to American television, but not as a package deal.

Patricia Heaton, who played Ray Romano’s wife in the long-running CBS comedy, is making a half-hour pilot for ABC in which she plays a widowed mom who gets involved with a parent-teacher organization.

Brad Garrett, who played

GOOD RIDDANCE, GUYS: The cast of “Raymond” won’t be working together.

Romano’s brother, is starring in the Fox pilot “Til Death” as a married man whose next-door neighbors are newlyweds, a Fox spokesman said.

A talked-about “Raymond” spinoff for CBS starring creator Phil Rosenthal didn’t come to fruition. Rosenthal is working on “Play Nice,” a comedy pilot for CBS about a brother and sister running a family-owned toy company. The cast includes Sara Rue, Timm Sharp, Fred Willard, Swoosie Kurtz and Tom McGowan.

All the pilots are under consideration for the 2006-07 season.

“Everybody Loves Raymond,” which wrapped in 2005 after nine seasons, won two Emmy Awards for Heaton and three for Garrett.

ON TV TONIGHT

THIS HERE’S A CREAMPUFF
THE APPRENTICE (9 p.m., NBC) How fabulous is it that The Donald has his little Donaldbees out selling cars?

IN HER SHOES
WIFESWAP (ABC, 8 p.m.) What began as a way to throw two families off balance and make them miserable has become a lesson in compromise and humility. Tonight, a woman who lives way in the past is forced to join the 21st century.

HOW MUCH DO I WANT?
The appeal of DEAL OR NO DEAL (8 p.m., NBC) is supposed to be its fiendish simplicity. It must say something about us that we still can’t figure out the rules. The pleasant surprise here is that Howie Mandel makes an engaging game-show host.

HELP IS ON THE WAY: Emily Bresler’s verbal and physical tics need a miracle.

NOT COMIC RELIEF
MIRACLE WORKERS (10 p.m., ABC) The MWs help a young woman with a severe form of Tourette Syndrome; we hope this show can correct the common TV take on Tourette as a hilarious subplot.

The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC) is well known in the banking industry and is one of the world's preeminent bank supervisory agencies. The OCC supervises the integrity of our national banks, including the majority of the largest banks in the U.S. Our culture strives to promote creative and innovative contributions by people in all positions and values and encourages diversity. Challenging work, quality of life balance, and a team-oriented environment add up to a rewarding work experience.

We are currently seeking accounting professionals to complement our Chief Accountant's Office staff. Major responsibilities include researching and formulating accounting policy and reporting standards for national banks, interpreting accounting principles, and identifying solutions to complex accounting issues raised by bank examiners, banks and the accounting profession.

Responsibilities also include coordinating policy development with the accounting standard-setters, including the Financial Accounting Standards Board and Securities and Exchange Commission, and other regulatory agencies. The Senior Policy Accountant will also participate in the development of international accounting and supervisory guidance through the OCC's representation on the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision and its related working groups.

If you are a highly motivated individual seeking a promising career choice with a great work life balance, consider the OCC. For the detailed vacancy announcement (DEU-SO-06-044), please visit our website:

www.occ.treas.gov to learn more about the OCC and how to apply for Careers at the OCC. You can also visit: www.usajobs.opm.gov or www.hotjobs.com to apply. For further information, please contact Donna Jacob at (202) 874-4402.

Karaoke still popular after three decades of pop-star pretending

At J Roos, a North Haven, Conn., pizza place and bar, 34 patrons have signed on for a chance to shine briefly on a Wednesday night. DJ Patty Shock runs a tight ship, and — great voice or lousy — you have to wait your turn.

That includes J Roos' owner, Sal Mazzaro. When he finally gets his chance, Mazzaro chooses "Just a Gigolo." The number calls for some tricky scat singing, which he deploys deftly, and it gets a few couples dancing. Mission accomplished.

Who knew, back when it first wended its ways through bars in the late 1980s, that karaoke would still be going strong in 2006?

In our first encounters with it, we marveled at how this Japanese import instantly transformed bankers and housewives into pop stars and gave rise to a "karaoke culture." But even die-hards questioned how long it would last. Rest assured, though, its place in our world is secure. Wherever you are, there's a place to go and sing for a crowd. It graduated from kitschy novelty to one of the old barroom standbys — like pool or darts.

What to account for the longevity of this thing that seemed so larkish — even a bit loopy — just a few years ago? An "American Idol"-type longing for fame and riches? Or a deep-seated need to express ourselves musically in venues other than showers or cars?

In some ways, the appeal is simple: Getting a full band together is hard, and it's even harder finding an audience; karaoke gives you both.

"I'm trying to take it to the next level," Kevin Knight said outside Koy Lounge in the Butterfly Restaurant in West Hartford, Conn., on a recent Friday night. By which he means breaking into music professionally, either as part of a band or in musical theater. He has been performing for about 10 years, sings three nights a week and is well-known in karaoke circles. He gets introduced later in the evening as "the house favorite."

He and Jessica LaRussa team up for "Couldn't Have Said It Better,"

OH NO, NOT MEAT LOAF AGAIN! Jessica LaRussa and Kevin Knight forgo karaoke staple "Paradise By the Dashboard Light" and went with another selection by the singer, "Couldn't Have Said It Better," at a recent karaoke night in a Connecticut bar.

Sing-a-long Time

originally by Meat Loaf, one of Knight's musical idols. A certain amount of applause is guaranteed for any singer here, but Knight and LaRussa more than earn their kudos. They strut, work the room and give a top-notch performance.

Knight's professional ambitions are hardly without precedent. Kelly Clarkson, the first "American Idol" winner, prepared for her career as a superstar singing karaoke. During "American Idol's" first season in 2002, Knight says, karaoke bars filled up with people inspired by the show. Nonetheless, Knight doesn't think the show has had much lasting influence on karaoke's popularity.

For every Kevin Knight, each karaoke night has an Erin Struff. She was performing publicly for the first time, singing Bon Jovi's "Shot Through the Heart." "I know I'm terrible," she insisted cheerfully, despite protests to the contrary. Her self-assessment doesn't stop her from gearing up to sing again. Indeed, she seems flush with the success of having cleared a personal hurdle.

"I feel much better; I honestly do," she said. And for her efforts the crowd gives her a hearty applause.

And then there are those who fall somewhere in between Knight and Struff.

Erica Kates gives the crowd a spirited rendition of Fleetwood Mac's "Gold Dust Woman." Kates sang in bands when she was in school but now has a job as an interior design consultant. She still likes to sing for crowds, though.

"Which dreams do you pick — the ones full of stardust, or the one you can stand on?" says Kates. "Karaoke is just a creative outlet for people who may not want a (musical) career. Not everyone wants to be the next 'American Idol.'"

Patty's Energizer Karaoke, as Shock's business is called, runs karaoke events five nights a week, usually in different venues. There's a core group of karaoke fanatics who follow Shock around. "It's just wonderful. They're my karaoke family," she said.

Tony Maturo, sitting at the bar in J Roos, counts himself among Shock's fans.

"There are places where nobody can sing. It's terrible," he said. "It really has to do with the person running the show."

Shock started running karaoke shows in 1991, not long after a Newsday article described karaoke as "the narcotic of the '90s." The effect has apparently yet to wear off.

"Once they get that mike in their hand, they're addicted," Shock said.

Latino radio stations finding popularity by tweaking their sound

Some of the things you won't hear on La Kalle 105.9 FM, New York's newest Spanish radio station: Salsa. Merengue. Pretty much any type of traditional Spanish music.

What you will hear: Daddy Yankee, Don Omar and plenty of other reggaeton artists, along with hip-hop and reggae stars, and DJs and commercials using "Spanglish" — a mix of Spanish and English.

The station, which went on the air just over six months ago, has adopted an up-and-coming format known as "hurban," for Hispanic-urban, which is aimed squarely at the ears of young Latinos.

"It's totally different from a traditional Latin station, but it's working out for us," said DJ Kazzanova, music director for La Kalle, which is owned by top Spanish-language broadcaster Univision.

“It's totally different from a traditional Latin station, but it's working out for us.”

In Los Angeles, KXOL-FM replaced its Spanish pop format with hurban last May and became Latino 96.3. It's now No. 1 in the market on weekends.

"You know what I mean, fool?" says Nico Jones, Latino 96.3's lead jock, after starting a sentence in Spanish.

Hurban stations are the latest example of how the growing Spanish radio industry is becoming more diverse as it tries to stay relevant for an increasingly varied Latino community.

In New York, one of the other two Spanish FM stations, La Mega 97.9 FM, plays a range of Spanish music but emphasizes the tropical-Caribbean forms, such as salsa, while 93.1 Amor FM plays slower, more romantic styles. Both of these stations, along with Latino 96.3 in L.A., are owned by the Spanish Broadcasting System.

In Los Angeles, scores of Spanish-language stations have formats ranging from old Mexican cumbias to the Spanglish-speaking jocks of Latino 96.3, who typically jump between Tego Calderon and Snoop Dogg.

And Spanish stations are now serving markets not usually associated with large Hispanic populations, including in places such as Kentucky and Oklahoma.

Around the country, Entravision Communications Corporation offers Jose, a Spanish-music version of the automated English format known as Jack, which plays music from a variety of decades and genres. The company also has Super Estrella, which plays Spanish pop and rock, as well as stations that play Mexican regional music, Tejano and romantic forms.

Even the major players of mainstream radio are taking part. Just last month, radio giant Clear Channel added to its existing Spanish radio offerings with the launch of La Preciosa, a network of more than a dozen stations that play Spanish oldies.

"There's a wealth of variations inside the general heading of Spanish music," said Tom Taylor, editor-in-chief of Inside Radio magazine.

The diversity in formats makes sense, considering what's going on with the Latino community in the United States, said Frank Flores, a vice president for Spanish Broadcasting Systems in New York.

"There are different tastes, so there are different ways to approach this," Flores said. DEEPTI HAJELA (AP)

Daria Werbowy lends her face to Lancome

IT'S NICE TO BE WANTED — and even better to be missed. That's because you get to have a "comeback."

Granted, model Daria Werbowy is only 22, but her "comeback" infused the catwalks with energy and sizzle during the most recent New York Fashion Week. She hit the big runways: Ralph Lauren, Oscar de la Renta, Carolina Herrera, Michael Kors, Proenza Schouler and Karl Lagerfeld, among them, often opening and closing the shows.

Last season she was absent from the runways because she was shooting the ads for Lancome's new Hypnose perfume and The Enchantress color collection.

They're the ads that will put Werbowy's face everywhere this spring.

That face is beautiful, feline-like — and approachable. There's no pretense to Werbowy, not when one sees her walking out of a fashion show in jeans and a puffy winter coat, and not when she does a telephone interview. "I think you should try everything once," Werbowy says. "The great thing about modeling is you get to have experiences you wouldn't normally have." Travel is the No. 1 perk, she says. Werbowy was born in Poland and raised in Canada, and she says she would have found a way to see the rest of the world somehow, some way, but "now I'm traveling in luxury."

Of course, life can't always be fun and games. Models do indeed work, and one of the hardest parts of the business can be the emotional toll. Werbowy won a modeling contest at 14, but her parents wanted her to finish high school — one that specialized in art — before she could move to New York or Europe. So she worked locally until 2001, when she moved to Paris and London. She lasted eight months and then quit.

"I was struggling in the sense of being away from home, trying to figure a way of making it in the business, especially a business that's so personal. It is really all about what you look like," she says.

"But I decided to come back a year later. I had a different attitude. I needed to make money to go to art school. I started fresh. When I met [modeling agency] IMG a second time, I laid down the law in those terms, and there was a good understanding between us. And then it just kind of happened."

Actually what happened was Marc Jacobs put her in his runway show — a rite of passage for up-and-comers. Plus, industry insiders have said her timing was perfect: She had the easygoing look that complemented the bohemian styles that were about to appear, and she was an antidote to the legions of blondes who had been dominating the runways.

She signed the deal to be the face of Lancome a year ago. Beauty modeling is different from fashion gigs, Werbowy says, because a fashion shoot is sort of show up, look great and make a beautiful picture. Beauty is a more intimate deal.

She's representing an entire brand and to do that properly, she's learning the business, how products are developed, manufactured and marketed. "It's opening a new chapter to being a model," Werbowy says. Her personal beauty mantra is "respect individuality."

Once her modeling career is over, or at least winds down, Werbowy plans to pursue art again.

"I need it in my life — I want to take everything that's happened over the last two years and put it on paper." SAMANTHA CRITCHELL (AP)

A Hint of Hue

The most important advice about the new Bare Escentuals Watercolor Blendable Eye Collection ($36, Sephora) is to be careful when opening them, or you'll end up with glimmery, shimmery bathroom tiles. The three colors (purple, pink and blue) can be worn either together or separately. Before you're struck with visions of '70s-glam blue eyeshadow, be aware that this formula is different. The color gets deeper without getting cakey as you put more on, and the shadows are so smooth that they blend with no streaking. KRISTEN PAGE-KIRBY (EXPRESS)

Spirits of the Season

Did you know the traditional way to celebrate St. John's Day (June 24) is to run through a fire? No wonder St. Patrick's Day is much more popular. But green beer? Bleh. If you'd prefer your booze without food coloring, Bud Light gets its Irish up with a green aluminum bottle decorated with shamrocks. The bottle is also printed in ultraviolet ink, meaning it's going to look seriously freaky under blacklights. The 16 oz bottles are available at bars, restaurants and convenience stores. K.P.K.

Post TV Columnist LISA DE MORAES was online Friday and talked "American Idol," Julia Louis-Dreyfus, "The Sopranos," and revealed what Charlize Theron was wearing on her shoulder at the Oscars. | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

How many episodes will air before Julia Louis-Dreyfus' show is pulled? Will she match Heather Graham's record?

I hope not, because the third episode of J L-D's new CBS sitcom "Old Christine" (she's the old one because her ex is dating a chick with the same name who is in her 20s) is much better than the first two and Heather Graham's ABC show "Emily's Reasons Why Not" was cancelled after just one episode.

Since you raised the issue of multiple runs of Sopranos in your article Friday morning, do you think the networks will ever offer "On Demand" runs of their shows?

Absolutely. It'll happen sooner rather than later. Viewers want to see things when they want to see them, and it's the thinking behind a lot of these mobile deals, etc. that the broadcast networks are cutting.

I have a 10-year-old daughter and even she doesn't think Chicken Little boy is cute — who keeps voting for him?

He's getting the granny vote. The old ladies who want to pinch his little pink cheeks. That's all I can figure.

On the Oscars: I really enjoyed Jon Stewart, but was expecting him to be edgier. I didn't understand the frosty Hollywood reception either, but my husband reasoned that Hollywood takes itself too seriously, and that when he made the "when you pirate movies, these are the people you're stealing from" comment, he lost them. And what the heck was Charlize Theron wearing?

Charlize Theron was wearing a penguin on her shoulder, like I said in my column or somewhere, which made her the perfect celebrity to announce that "March of the Penguins" had won the Oscar for best documentary.

And again, I insist that if Billy Crystal had delivered that hilarious line — about how when you, the viewer, pirate a movie these are the people you are stealing from and that some of the women in the audience barely have enough money to cover their breasts (it was funny when Jon Stewart said it) — the audience would have erupted in laughter because he's One Of Them.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) The more you try to seek a way out the more likely you are to feel trapped somehow in a tangled web of your own making. Freedom lies within.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) What you see before you as you wake may seem somehow daunting, but with a little thought and planning you can overcome any obstacle.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may become a leader or sorts—without even knowing it yet. What you do will very likely be remembered for some time to come.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're not going to want to reveal something specific about yourself just yet, but the process of concealing it may get rather complicated.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A special dream is likely to seem closer than ever, but you may have to wait a little while still before it comes true.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A surprise is in store for you, and be sure to keep your eyes and ears open at all times. After dark, certain risks increase.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Avoid becoming too competitive, or you may find yourself alienating someone who should really be on your side.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Someone may have a valid complaint to lodge with you, but you will be loath to do much about it just yet. See what develops.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Stamina is an issue, and guard against wasting fuel of any kind as you proceed cautiously along your charted course.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) A few important questions must be answered before you continue along your chosen path. A difficult issue arises after dark.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Now is no time to be satisfied with the routine or the ordinary. You'll have a chance to excel in no uncertain terms.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Take care you don't give too much early on, leaving yourself with only a little energy when you really need it later in the day.

Another Crowe Male Set To Wreak Havoc on World

RUSSELL CROWE and his wife are have a baby boy. The "Gladiator" star told Jay Leno on "The Tonight Show" Friday that he and his wife, actress Danielle Spencer, are expecting the baby in June or July. They had previously announced the pregnancy, but not the baby's sex. They already have a son, Charlie, whose first choice for his brother's name was "Pumpkinhead," Crowe told Leno. "But then the next day ... he changed it to Stinky." (AP)

DO-GOODERS

Because Who Needs More Doctors or Fire Fighters?

Grammy-winning R&B artist USHER wants to teach teenagers how to succeed in the sports and entertainment industries. Usher will promote the sports and entertainment industries as valuable career paths — for those who are prepared — when he speaks at a March 18 teen leadership seminar sponsored by the YMCA in Cleveland. More than 400 seventh-through 12th-graders are expected at the event. (AP)

SMOKING

Her Brand: Slims?

LINDSAY LOHAN's manager-mother, Dina, says she's worried about the starlet's smoking habit. "Lindsay's smoking," Dina Lohan says in an interview in Seventeen magazine's April issue. "You think I like it? No. I cry to her. I told her, 'You have to stop smoking. You have asthma. You could die. This isn't good for you.'" The actress-singer, who gained attention for her weight loss last year, was treated at a Miami-area hospital in early January for an asthma attack. (AP)

DISPUTES

Staff Refuses To Be Paid in Llama Fur

State regulators said they will go after MICHAEL JACKSON in court if he fails to meet a Tuesday deadline to pay $100,000 in penalties and $306,000 in back pay owed to nearly 50 workers at his Neverland Ranch. "If they don't comply then we file suit to get a judgment," Dean Fryer, a spokesman for the California Department of Industrial Relations, said Friday. The ranch operators have until the close of business Tuesday to pay up. (AP)

More Like Gravel, Really

LEIF GARRETT was ordered to remain in a strict live-in drug rehab program for another month after spending 42 days there. He asked Thursday to switch to an outpatient program so he could be with his ailing mother. "I'm going down the right path," he told reporters. "Instead of a dirt road, I've been on a paved road." He also vowed to never appear again in an orange jail suit mug shot: "I don't look good in orange," he said. (AP)

OBVIOUS HEADLINES

Blah Blah Won't Like Him When He's Angry Blah

LOU FERRIGNO, who played The Incredible Hulk in the 1978-82 TV series, is suing his brother, Andrew Ferrigno, saying Andrew's business, Ferrigno Fitness of Greenwich Township, N.J., is unlawfully trading on Lou's name and image. The lawsuit claims the store has a green awning, portions of the interior are green, and one green wall is covered with photos of Lou Ferrigno. (AP)

Ferrigno and the Hulk share a common obsession: trademark infringement.
